Global Love Day Declared for May 1, 2006 With Gatherings and Celebrations Around the World And Dozens of Proclamations From Leaders in the US

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Tampa, FL, April 27, 2006 — It's all about LOVE in global proportions! The Love Foundation is once again inviting people around the world to join together in celebrating and expanding LOVE during a one day planetary event encompassing all nations, all people, and all life on May 1, 2006. This third annual Global Love Day with the theme "Love Begins With Me" takes place as various celebrations around the globe.

Since its initial introduction of this day in 2004, The Love Foundation has received responses from individuals and organizations in over 85 countries and more than 70 U.S. proclamations and greetings from prominent Governors, Mayors and Councils embracing the idea. Worldwide response has led to the inclusion of 17 volunteer country coordinators, many of which are establishing annual love based celebrations throughout Africa, Australia, European and Asian countries in addition to the US.

TLF Founder, Harold W. Becker, states, "This day is a global recognition of humanity and the power of love within each individual." The idea is based on six visionary statements for Global Love Day that includes themes of unity, diversity, compassion, forgiveness, love and self acceptance. Awareness for this event is spreading largely by the internet and numerous volunteers. By accessing the Foundation's main web site at www.thelovefoundation.com people of all backgrounds including musicians, artists, government and religious leaders, authors, homemakers, students, NGO's, and businesses from around the world are sharing their support and announcing their local plans.
